

JUNE 23 – 26, 2017

BARRY DORNON
COLT STARTING CLINIC
Hosted by AOPF STABLES

3637 Black Rock Road, Upperco, Maryland 21155

About Barry and what you can expect:

Barry works with the idea of developing trust and a connection between horse and rider. He believes that trust has to be a 2-way street where the rider trusts the horse as much as the horse trusts the rider. His understanding of horse psychology, developed through years of experience with hundreds of horses, can help riders at any level and discipline get better at seeing the world from the horse's perspective.

Barry moved to Maryland in 2016 and now calls AOPF Stables in the heart of the Green Spring Valley hunt country north of Baltimore home. This clinic will be an opportunity to meet him and watch as he takes several horses through the process of being saddled and ridden for the first time.

Barry will spend the first day and a half on ground work and getting the horses used to carrying a saddle. Owners will have the option for Barry to coach them thru the first rides or Barry will ride if the owner prefers.

We have limited space available. It will be a great opportunity to compare how the methods used work with different types of horses as we already know the participants will include an Oldenburg, a Quarter Horse and a Dutch Warmblood. The clinic is generally aimed at young horses that have not been ridden previously but older horses that would benefit from starting over are welcome. Please contact Barry or Florence Germain if you are interested.
